On the Side.

At the opening of the shooting season The Sun drew the attention of prospective hunters to the easy method of getting into trouble thru the system of hunting without a license. It may have taken effect in some quarters, but that it failed with others is proven by the fact that some $210.05 was collected in the Edmonton Police Court Wednesday last in fines and "costs" from eight residents of this district, on such charges as hunting big game without a license and trapping muskrats out of season. Those mulcted were put to the extra expense and trouble of attending court in the City.

Daily newspapers ("gutter-rags" as H W Wood once called them) don't seem to be able to let the popular Farmer's movement alone, the last to break out being the Calgary Albertan, as follows: "These Farmer leaders seem to have the appropriate names—the leader of the old Patrons of Industry was Haycock; now the Dominion leader is Forke; and we have Greenfield and Browalee; and Wood for Forke handle."

An Edmonton daily tells us Inland Riverina people have been conducting search parties in the district fifteen to twenty-five miles west of the City for illicit stills; while another authority intimates that the local members of the Manufacturers' Association who assume that this is not the open season for Moonshiners, have another think coming.

Some of Saturday's Events:

On Saturday last Stony was graced by the presence of three visiting doctors from the City—an optometrist, a chiropractor, a dentist. On their departure in the evening the bicycle signal of Edmonton bootleggers' union came out on a prospecting tour. Shortly after their arrival, one bootlegger parted with his goods to a bunch of determined young men at away below cost price; while the other legger met his fate at the hands of the Police.

Hurrah for Sunnybrook!

Mr Wm Gilbert, of Sunnybrook Farm, has had great success with his herd of purebred swine this season. At the recent Alberta Winter Fair held in Calgary, there was great competition among hog raisers for the special prizes offered by the Provincial and Dominion Departments of Agriculture.

In the Children's Bacon Class, in which there were 40 competitors, the winners of the first prize and second prize were the get of sires sold from Sunnybrook Farm.

The winners of the first and second prizes in Thick and Smooth Class, and the Reserve Champion of the Show, were the get of two other Gilbert boars.

The winners of the second prize for the Open Pen of 3 for Bacon, were Borks.

These were all of the purebred Berkshire type, in competition with the highly-praised Tams, the latter being satisfied to take the second place.

Farmer Secures One Thousand Pounds Of Ripe Tomatoes In Peace River Country

Just north of Peace River, which is 550 miles north of the International Boundary, a farmer, Fendell Bush, ripened 1,000 pounds of tomatoes of the best quality this season. At Fort Vermilion, 300 miles farther south, tomatoes, cucumbers, pumpkins and musk melons were matured. Wheat is stated to be "Number One Hard, as usual," and the hay crop abundant. Settlement of the Peace River country is continuing at a healthy rate and this year more than 1,500 settlers have secured farms in Northern Alberta through homesteading.

A Prosperous Nation

Future Well-Being of the Dominion Is Assured

The truth is that Canada is a cozy corner of the world. We have our problems, and they are not light, but compared with the difficulties of other nations, they are as nothing. In the light of the achievements of the past eight years, they cannot impose fear.

All that we require is reasonable anxiety. If we can but guard against the intoxication which threatened us with wreckage, in pre-war days, can adhere to realities and cut our financial coat to suit our financial cloth, our future prosperity is assured.—Ottawa Journal.

Hamilton Man Says Figs Can Be Grown for Commercial Purposes in Canada

Upon results which have attended his efforts in the past two years, John Field, of Hamilton, has come to the conclusion that figs can be grown for commercial purposes in Canada. Mr. Field, a well-known organizer for the American Federation of Labor, has grown a second crop of figs to support his claim.

"During the war I planted a fig tree and gave it no more attention. By last year the tree was six or seven feet in height and yielded a peck of figs," he says. "The figs were larger than any I have seen in the United States," even the most southern parts, and they were perfect for domestic purposes."

Rural Credit Systems Prove A Factor In Development Of Western Canada Agriculture

In the development in Canada of agriculture, which is the first and most important industry of the country, the pursuit has rapidly manifested itself as a business involving the application of business practices, and it has been found necessary to provide for those engaged in it such facilities for borrowing as will enable them to have their credit requirements satisfied according to their needs. Admirable as is the Canadian banking system conceded to be, farmers complained that it was not framed to meet their special and peculiar needs, and to meet these needs all the Provincial Governments have devised systems and put into operation institutions for meeting requirements for rural credit. If we are to judge by the manner these various systems have been taken advantage of and the promotion they have effected in Dominion agriculture, rural credit systems in Canada have been a success.

The following briefly describe the various systems adopted in the prairie provinces, with the amount of money loaned through them, and with some variations they will be found basically the same.

The Rural Credits Act of 1917 makes provision for the organization by farmers of rural credit societies through which they may obtain short-term loans for production purposes. Before commencing business the society must receive subscriptions to its capital stock from at least thirty-five persons actually engaged in farming. Any member desiring a loan makes application to the secretary, stating the purpose of the loan and submitting a statement of his assets and liabilities. If his application is approved, he is granted a line of credit for a year, and all the personal property he acquires through the proceeds of the loan is subject to a lien in favor of the society. The rate of interest payable by the borrower must not exceed 7 per cent. per annum. Until March, 1920, the banks furnished the loans at six per cent. but when they decided to raise the interest, legislation was passed establishing the Provincial Savings Bank, which accepts deposits from all sources and pays a per cent. interest.

Long-term or mortgage credit is provided in Manitoba through an Act passed in the same year, which created the Farm Loans Association, to act as a loaning agent between the Government and the farmers. The association is managed by a board of five members. The capital stock is $1,000,000 divided into 45 shares. Every borrower must subscribe and pay cash for shares to the extent of 5 per cent. of the amount of his loan and loans are secured by a first mortgage. Loans must not be for more than $10,000, must not exceed 50 per cent. of the value of the property mortgaged, and must be used solely for agricultural development. Since 1917 more than $7,000,000 has in this way been loaned to Manitoba farmers.

The province of Saskatchewan has no legislation for short-term credits, but an Act in 1917 provided for long-term credits, which is practically the same as the Manitoba Act. The chief differences are: (1) No maximum is stated for any individual loan. (2) All the money for the loaning purposes is provided by the Provincial Treasurer. (3) First mortgages received by the board are handed over to the Provincial Treasurer as security for the loan. Up to a recent date the Saskatchewan had completed 4,374 loans for a total amount of $8,407,456.

In the province of Alberta, under the Livestock Encouragement Act, five or more farmers may form an association and apply to the Government for a loan to be used in purchasing cows and hifers, and, if desired, the joint purchase of a pure-bred bull, which must not cost more than 10 per cent. of the loan. Each member may borrow up to $500; the money being borrowed on the joint and several notes of the members guaranteed by the Government. Short-term credit is provided by the Co-operative Credit Act, which is very similar to the Rural Credits Act of Manitoba, the chief difference being that the rate of interest is 6 per cent.

interest to be paid by the borrowers is not a fixed rate but is decided by agreement between the society and the bank as lender. In 1917 the Alberta Farm Loan Act, for long-term credits, was passed, but has not been put into operation.

To Save Western Antelope

Held on Government Reserve Near Foremost is Increasing

Governments plans to prevent the extinction of the antelope in Western Canada are proving successful, and the reserve created at Foremost, Alta., in 1918, with 50 animals in captivity, has now increased to 130, representing an increase of 30 head for the past year.

The reserve, known as the Nemiskam Park, comprises nine square miles and the steady growth of the herd and the absence of disease is good evidence that the experiment is likely to result in saving this most interesting species from the extermination which otherwise inevitably awaits it.

Swifter than the greyhound in flight, exceedingly graceful and beautiful, the antelope has for many years been a prize for the big game hunter, and its numbers have been diminishing of late years with a rapidity that has aroused the concern of all lovers of wild life.

Ten years ago Dr. W. T. Hornaday, the distinguished American naturalist, estimated that there were 2,000 in Western Canada. Today there are reported to be only about 1,000 in a wild state in Alberta, and 250 in Saskatchewan, while they entirely disappeared from the province of Manitoba some years ago.

Says War Menace

Becoming Greater

Lloyd George's Former Secretary Says Arbitration System Needed

Because the world, metaphorically speaking is getting smaller and questions between nations are thereby becoming more constant and impossible of being ignored, Phillip H. Kerr, formerly secretary to Lloyd George in an address to McGill Canadian Club, affirmed that wars will become more frequent in the future, if means are not taken to provide the nations of the world with some method of adjusting differences by arbitration. He thought that, broadly speaking, the line of advancement was along the League of Nations idea which, while capable of great improvement was a step forward. He gave it as his view that, if there were another world war, nations would be driven into "by trying to escape."

Increasing Range Of Vision

Birds Provided With Means of Seeing Clearly In Fog

The remarkable observation has been made that the eyes of birds contain drops of colored oil. For example, domestic fowls look out upon an orange-colored world because of the globules of orange-colored oil in the eye, which acts like an orange-colored lens. A careful study of this phenomenon by an investigator named Hanning has revealed the fact, according to Reclan's University, that the object of this provision is to increase the range of vision, especially in foggy weather. As a matter of fact our own vision can be similarly improved, too, in a fog, by the wearing of orange-colored glasses. If, for example, the unaided eye has a range of 300 yards in such weather; the donning of such spectacles increases the visible distance to 2,000 yards.—Literary Digest.

The Power Of Instinct

Interesting Discovery Has Been Made By Danish Scientist

As readers of the C.N. know a Danish scientist, Dr. Johannes Schmidt, has for many years past been making a close study of the eel, and trying to solve the mystery of its life-history. In the Dana, a vessel fitted up as a scientific laboratory, he has been dredging in the Atlantic, and has made some extraordinarily interesting discoveries.

The most interesting being that two different kinds of eels breed near the Bermudas, one travelling west to America, and the other east to Europe.

The only difference between these two kinds of eels is that one has fewer bones in its backbone than the other. Both species were often taken in the same net.

Why is it, then, that one kind invariably takes its way to European rivers, while the other kind goes to America? Why do not the American eels sometimes come to Europe, and the European sometimes go to America?

The answer is that they cannot, and if they tried to they would die. In the European eel the larval stage lasts for three years, whereas in the American it occupies only one year. If, therefore, an American eel tried to reach European rivers, it would find itself in mid-Atlantic when it emerged from the larval stage and needed fresh water. Being unable to get it the eel would perish.

Similarly if the European eel were to try to reach American waters, a journey which takes only a year, it would arrive in fresh water two years before it was ready to leave the larval stage. It would be unfit for fresh water and would die.

So by that mysterious power of instinct, or heredity, or whatever it may be, the American and European eels, although born together, never take the wrong turning, but always turn east and west according to the species they belong to.

Concerning the Silver King of Fishes, the Tarpon.

OW many of you know what a Sardine is?" asked Stella, the Wishing Fairy, at the End-of-the-Trip make home where she lives with her Brownie hand of Snookums, Kinkajou, Lorykins and Pimble. Of these four little fellows Pimble is by far the most inquisitive, for he is always trotting off, all by himself, to the World where Humans live. He loves excitement and learning about new things, so he goes after them generally less than successful.

"Yes, I do!" he answered eagerly. "They are a very small, silvery fish that are packed in tins and eaten by People. I've noticed that there are some Sardines aren't taken along. But I've also noticed, and I might as well mention it as long as I am speaking on this subject, that Humans have a most disorderly and horrid habit of leaving their plates and dishes all over the place when they are through with their picnics. I don't see why they are not as careful to carry their wreckage home to dispose of it as they were in bringing it here. I only destroy the beauty of the place they have chosen for the picnic and they always pick out a particularly lovely place for these kind of parties—just you ought to see some spot in the woods or on the banks of a brook after a picnic. It's awful. I often think Humans are very thoughtless creatures! But why did you ask us Brownies if we know what Sardines are?"

"Because," the Fairy answered, "Snookums just asked me to tell him about Tarpons. You didn't hear him?" "Yes," exclaimed Pimble, "what about Tarpons—I know that they are enormous silver fish."

"They are quite right," Stella returned, "and they are of such a brilliant gleaming silver that they are often called 'Silver King.' They are very beautiful, but, to go back to Sardines, I asked that question because I was going to tell you that the large Tarpon belongs to the Sardine family—and Sardines are so tiny that it seems strange—they are so unlike, except in their silver-like coloring."

"Tell us about Tarpon," Kinkajou begged.

"They have another curious peculiarity," Stella continued, "which is that they can leap a wall and migrate at exactly the same time the wild Ducks choose to travel. They are a warm water fish, and in summer they swim as far north as the Gulf of Mexico, while in cold winter Snookums asked curiously, 'It seems a pity, for you say they are so beautiful.'"

"Humans," Stella explained, "love to fight, and the Tarpon, when hooked, puts up a terrific fight. As soon as they feel the hook they immediately try to get rid of it. Sometimes in this battle for life they jump six to ten feet out of water, and it is very exciting for a fisherman, as Tarpon sometimes weighs as much as 350 pounds."

"I must say," Pimble exclaimed thoughtfully, "that I can see no fun or sport in fighting some poor hooked creature for its life. It seems so unfair."

"And I agree with you," returned the little hearted little Fairy.

The Valuable Qualities Of Canadian Hard Wheat Now Known The World Over

In many directions it is difficult to drive home the fact that Canadian wheat possesses unique qualities which make it peculiarly desirable from many standpoints and create for it a demand from all sections of the globe. Critics of Canada's climate are slow to be convinced that it is largely this very element which is responsible for the high quality of the Canadian product and that for the same reason its standard is impossible of reproduction in other countries. The profound scepticism which declared that wheat could never be commercially raised north of the international boundary is tardy of complete eradication. In general Canada's prestige seems to rest rather on the volume of her wheat production than on its quality. The public visions widespread agricultural lands, reads of an unexpected yield of 38,000,000 bushels of wheat and of the Dominion's ascension to second place among the wheat-producing countries of the globe, and is impressed to such an extent with the vast figures of output that facts of quality become largely overshadowed.

Recently a Canadian member resigned from the committee of the British Empire Exhibition in London, Eng., as a protest, amongst other things against that body's obstinate conviction that Canada could not, from her own flour, make bread sufficiently palatable to serve as meals at the exhibition. Albeit the same time American millers were winning at the newly enacted American tariff because they knew it was imperative for them to continue their purchases of Canadian wheat to keep up the standard of American flour, and British millers, rather the best judges of wheat in the United Kingdom, were sending their plants across the Atlantic that American shippers had been tampering with Canadian wheat passing through their hands and mixing American grain with it with the object of passing their product off as the Canadian wheat so desirable to British millers.

There is great significance in the fact that in acreage production Canada outyields other countries engaging in grain production, the same extensive scale, and that the first returns of the western wheat crop record over 70 per cent. as grading Number One Northern. There is a reason why the world's wheat champion ship as far back as 1920, went to a plot of land within the shadow of the Arctic Circle; why for ten years successively the world's first wheat honors went to various sections of Western Canada; why in the world's competition in 1921 Canada secured twenty-two of the twenty-five prizes offered for wheat. Only the Canadian climate and Canadian soil working in conjunction could have produced a Seager Wheeler, to capture the world's wheat championship five times and create a world's production record with eighty-two bushels to the acre.

Exhaustive scientific tests in both Canada and the United States have proved that Canadian-grown seed has stronger powers of germination than that grown farther south and is more desirable in many ways. American farmers discovered this for themselves and commenced importing Canadian grains many years ago. The peculiarly hard qualities of the Canadian grown wheat are appreciated in the milling industry, and each year large quantities of Canadian wheat are purchased by United States millers to mix with the native grain and raise the standard of their flour. Canada has taken American oats and alfalfa, and has so improved them that her climate has vanquished American growers in competition and brought about an extensive importation of the seed. The wheat crop of Seager Wheeler sells for thirty dollars a bushel.

There can be no doubt but that Canadian wheat has materially benefited agriculture in many countries. In 1921 Canada lost the world's wheat championship after holding it ten years, but this triumph for the United States was only effected through the use of Canadian-produced seed which the Montana farmer, the new champion, had imported. Canadian wheat goes all over the world and its benefit to agriculture is only incidentally disclosed on occasions when some story trickles back and the Dominion is made aware of what she is doing.

This thought is raised by a story which has recently come from France relating to Aristide Briand, seven times Premier of the French Republic. Probably as a hobby he bought a farm in Normandy and brought his qualities of astuteness into question, for the farm was notorious as the worst piece of land in the district. The Premier, however, tackled the question in his characteristically aggressive manner, bringing science and expert knowledge to bear upon it. He had the soil analysed and treated, and as a final measure imported wheat from Canada. This fall he added a further triumph to his successful career by carrying away the first wheat prize at the Normandy agricultural fair. It was an achievement for Canadian wheat, probably typical of many other countries.

Surplus Populations

In Haiti, where the people are partly all black, there are now three births to one death. Americans have taught them sanitary methods and have prevented these murdering conditions of revolution. The population is five times what it was when Haiti revolted against France. By and by it will overflow, then will come another problem. If the white man's science produces the same conservative birth rate in China, Africa and other countries, what will be the answer to the inevitable problem—Detroit Times.

I would just faint away, and it would sometimes be an hour before they could bring me back to life. Someone told me about Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. "California Fig Syrup"

Hurry mother! Even a sick child loves the "fruit" taste of "California Fig Syrup" and it never fails to open the bowels. A teaspoonful today may prevent a sick child tomorrow. If constipated, bilious, feverish, fretful, has cold, colic, or if stomach is sour, tongue coated, breath bad, remember a good cleansing of the little bowels is often all that is necessary. Ask your druggist for genuine "California Fig Syrup" which has directions for babies and children of all ages printed on bottle. Mother! You must say "California" or you may get an imitation fig syrup.

Negroes Warned to Leave

Athens, Ga.—Two hundred negroes and 50 white farmers of Oconee county held a mass meeting, according to reports published here, after notices were posted on several negro churches and lodge rooms Sunday, warning the negroes to leave before the end of the year. The negroes at the meeting adopted a resolution declaring confidence in the "law-abiding white citizens of our country, and further, that we will not be driven from among the white people whom we know to be our friends without first giving them an opportunity of protecting us."

Gen. Harington Issues Warning To Turks To Keep The Peace

BARELY LIVED THROUGH IT

Constantinople.—Lieut. Gen. Harington, commander of the Allied forces here, has issued a stern warning to the Kemalists that any further encroachments upon Constantinople would be at their peril. Addressing a large gathering assembled to witness boxing bouts between British soldiers and sailors at the auditorium of the British headquarters, he declared that the Allied forces in Constantinople were a rock marked "dangerous," upon which the Turks would wreck themselves if they persisted in trying the patience of the Allies.

"The Allies are very conciliatory, very patient," he said. "They have exercised great forbearance and restraint. Our ministers have gone to Lausanne with the same spirit of conciliation, justice and fairness. They are, however, human and there is a limit to human nature. Those who try to exceed that limit play with fire. They would be well advised by the referee to break away."

It is understood that the decision of the national assembly at Angora to replace Hafez Pasha as military governor at Constantinople was taken for three reasons. The first was that the assembly took exception to certain of Hafez's speeches; second, he was considered as showing a too conciliatory attitude in his relations with the Allied Generals here; and lastly, the Nationalists disapproved his remarks to the effect that native Christians would be unwise to leave Constantinople. On the latter count, the view in Angora is said to be that the more Christians leaving voluntarily the fewer there will be to expel later.

B.C. May Deprive Japs Of Fishing Rights

Federal Fisheries Commission Want Licenses to Orientals Reduced Vancouver.—On thousands and forty-two Japanese fishing license-holders and their crews will be deprived of the right to fish in British Columbia waters, if the recommendation of the Federal Fisheries Commission to the Minister of Marine and Fisheries in Ottawa, is accepted. The commission recommended that licenses to Orientals be reduced by 40 per cent. This year licenses were issued to 2,606 Japanese.

A terrible experience had Edw. J. O'Connor, of Saint Rita Marie. From boyhood he writes: "I have been a constant sufferer from Asthma and Catarrh. My nose and throat was often stopped up, and I had disagreeable droppings from my throat. When an attack of coughing came on, it seemed as if I would barely live through it. I would gasp for breath. Catarrh made me well. His soothing healing action was exactly suited to my case." To those who suffer from Catarrh, Asthma, Throat Irritation and Bronchitis, Catarrh is highly recommended. Two months treatment one dollar, smaller sizes 50c and 30c at all dealers or The Catarrh Co., Montreal.

It is just as effective as ever in relieving coughs and colds, and still holds first place as the most popular of cough medicines.

Colds and Bronchitis

Mrs. Chris Dresser, Bayfield, Ont., writes: "We have used Dr. Chase's Linseed and Turpentine in our household for sometime, and have always received good results. I have used it for my children as well as for myself for colds and bronchitis, and we find it gives immediate relief. Three bottles of this medicine once relieved me of an obstinate cold when doctor's medicine had failed. I cannot speak too highly of Dr. Chase's Linseed and Turpentine, and would not be without it in the house. If you can make any use of this letter you are at liberty to do so."

Asthma

Mr. Thomas Bond, Sheldrake, North Shore, Que., writes:—"I suffered for years with asthma, sometimes being unable to lie in bed, but after a treatment of Dr. Chase's Linseed and Turpentine, I am now quite well and thank this medicine for restoring me."

The Bald-face Cayuse.

A slight commotion was caused last week when a rumor spread that a hunter had met with an accident near the Holborn ferry. A cayuse had been seen for several days in succession standing in the same position, tied to a willow at the foot of the hill; and on going over to it, it was found that it had become snagged. The cayuse was released, and it was feared its owner had been shot while hunting along the flats, or had fallen into the river. The police were notified, and on investigation it turned out that the owner was unable to re-cross the river to his home and had tied the animal there and gone up the trail to camp, unmindful of the wants of the animal on which he had travelled.

The Time for Good Producers

If there ever was a time might be impressed on people it is the situation now, says the Calgary Market Exam-

Good fat fowl is quoted at 40c to 50c each at Calgary.

The One Mean Scrub.

There is probably no place on earth better than a country newspaper office to learn how many kinds of people there are. Some get huffy if a statement is sent;
others will not pay until they receive a statement. Some will pay without a statement and others won't pay whether a statement is sent or not. Some thought they owed more and some thought they didn't owe so much. Some say they couldn't get along without the paper others say it doesn't amount to much; but the meanest scrub list on the list is the man who takes it until he is shut off for nonpayment and spends all his time explaining how he used to take "the thing."
